

Read about what one Get ready for Geneva adviser got up to last summer...

My name is Rosalyn, I am 14 and I was a young adviser for CRAE.

I had to apply for the role of young adviser by writing an application. In the application I basically had to write what skills I thought I had what I would bring to the job and why I would like to do it. When Carla called to say I was picked I was so excited I was jumping up and down and it's been really great to be a young adviser because of all the things I got to do.

On the 7th of August I had to go for an induction day and there I met the other two young advisers that were picked. The few hours we spent together I learnt how many hours I would be doing over the holiday and what things I would be doing and who I would be working with.

The first thing I did was I gave my opinion on the layout of the monthly bulletin and how it could be improved and what should stay the same I felt that was the easiest task for me because I love being creative and giving new coming up with new ideas.

The first event I went to was the age discrimination event which was really fun to go to because I got to meet other young people like myself and express my views and ideas. We split up into groups and I felt like it was a really good group to be involved in I felt that I could say anything without being judged or looked down upon by other people it really was a good experience...

I have really enjoyed working with CRAE over the summer and I hope that I will get the chance to work with them in the future as well.
